Occupational Health Nurse
$71,376.41- $93,685.11 annually

The Workplace Health and Safety Branch (WHS) provides the BC Public Service with health planning and promotion, occupational safety, occupational health and rehabilitation, and disability benefits administration services through regional offices in Vancouver, Victoria, and Kamloops. The mandate of WHS is to build a workforce culture of safety and health, by delivering services and information to public service managers and employees that support them to manage their health and improve workforce productivity.

Under the direction of the Health-Care Team Practice Lead, the Occupational Health Nurse (OHN) 7 manages disability cases, provides advice, support, and coordination of resources for employees and their supervisors, and identifies opportunities for early intervention to help ill and injured employees return to sustainable work as quickly and as safely as possible. The OHN works directly with employees, managers, occupational health physicians, and community health care providers to provide clinical case management services consistent with current occupational health nursing ethics and practice guidelines. Within the WHS principles of early intervention, evidence-based decision-making, health as a shared responsibility, and customer service, the OHN 7 works collaboratively with the integrated OHR team of Return to Work Specialists, Injury Recovery Specialists, Medical Case Analysts, and administrative professionals.

The BC Public Service is committed to creating a diverse workplace to represent the population we serve and to better meet the needs of our citizens. Consider joining our team and being part of an innovative, inclusive and rewarding workplace.
